Projectes

Respiration Rate With Computer Vision | Python, Computer Vision, Flask, Docker Containers

May 2024

- I developed a Python application utilizing OpenCV to accurately detect the chest area and calculate the patient's respiration rate.
- The system leverages image processing techniques to monitor breathing patterns, providing an efficient and non-invasive method for respiratory analysis.
- Deployed in web app and Docker container.
- Run the container on Microsot Azure Container Instances
